The core structure is based on the Constitution, which establishes three main branches: the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial branches. This separation of powers ensures a system of checks and balances designed to prevent any one branch from becoming too powerful.

The legislative process involves drafting, debating, amending, and passing bills, which then move to the President for approval.

1. The President: Elected every four years, with a maximum of two terms. The President directs foreign policy, commands the military, and has veto power over legislation.
2. Vice President: Assists the President and presides over the Senate.
3. Federal Agencies: Agencies like the FBI, CIA, and Department of Homeland Security implement policies and manage federal programs.
